

Stephen Frost

Director, CSR Asia, Hong Kong

Stephen Frost is one of the founders and a director of CSR Asia. He is also an assistant professor at the Department of Asian and International Studies at City University of Hong Kong. He is a specialist in corporate social responsibility (CSR) in Asia, Asian labour law, occupational health and safety standards, and labour issues and standards in Asian supply chains. He is widely published on CSR, labour standards, auditing, CSR in supply chains, and has worked with numerous companies on key supply chain issues in Asia. He is an international speaker and regularly sought after by companies, government agencies and the media.

His recent work has focused on the dilemmas surrounding labour standards and workplace conditions in China for the sustainable and responsible investment (SRI) community, China's complicated and rapidly changing occupational health and safety environment, the effect of foreign direct investment on industrial relations, and CSR in Asia. His publications include articles on corporate codes of conduct in the Chinese toy sector, labour relations and regulations in Cambodia, Singapore and Vietnam, labour standards in China, mainland Chinese investment in Southeast Asia, and recent changes to the Chinese occupational health and safety regulatory framework. He is a regular contributor to specialist magazines in the region (including Fortune – Chinese edition, Asian Quality, and others). He holds a PhD in Asian Studies from Murdoch University in Australia.
